Interpretation of powers of Certiorari

1459. DR. ABHISHEK MANU SINGHVI: Will the Minister of LAW AND JUSTICE be pleased to state:

†Original notice of the question was received in Hindi.

(a) whether Government is aware of the recent ruling given by the Supreme Court that although the constitutional power of "Certiorari" is vested in the High Courts, it would be governed solely by the dictates of judicial conscience enriched by experience and practical wisdom of the Judges;

(b) if so, whether such a course would become subjective as "wisdom and experience" are personal attributes and are not well defined; and

(c) whether such a subjectivity adjudication would at times, deny justice to the relief seeker?

THE MINISTER OF LAW AND JUSTICE (SHRI H.R. BHARDWAJ): (a) Yes, Sir, The Hon'ble Supreme Court in B.K. Muniraju Vs. State of Karnataka & Ors., 2008 (4) SCC 451, has inter alia made the following observations:

"As observed in Surya Dev Rai Vs. Ram Chander Rai (2003) 6 SCC 675 the exercise of jurisdiction under Articles 226 or 227 of the Constitution cannot be tied down in a straitjacket formula or rigid rules. To put it clear though the power is there but the exercise is discretionary which will be governed solely by the dictates of judicial conscience enriched by judicial experience and practical wisdom of the Judge."

(b) and (c) No, Sir. Each case depends on its own facts and a close similarity between one case and another is not enough because even a single significant detail may alter the entire aspect of the case.
